Ofsted January 2019 found Early years to be GOOD

"Adults have built trusting relationships with children and their families. They have established a nurturing atmosphere in which children are well looked after. Staff compliment this with clear routines and high expectations of the children's behaviour. As a result, children cooperate well with each other, and their behaviour is good."

"The quality of teaching in the early years is effective."

"The children make strong progress."
